If you aspire to be a college or university professor, are committed to diversity and eradicating racial disparities in higher education, and are from a racial and ethnic background that is underrepresented in the academy, we encourage you to apply.

DO YOU HAVE THE PASSION FOR RESEARCH?

Apply for our 2022 cohort!

The Moore Undergraduate Research Apprenticeship Program (MURAP) invites applications for a paid summer fellowship for undergraduate students (rising juniors and seniors) in the humanities, social sciences, or fine arts. The 2022 program will be held from May to July 2022 hosted by University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. MURAP seeks to ensure that institutions of higher learning are racially diverse and equitable by preparing talented and highly motivated students for future academic careers. We seek students who are committed to diversity and eradicating racial disparities in the academy.

As a participant you will receive:

- Research mentorship
- Writing, Communication Skills and Professional Development workshops
- GRE prep course
- Campus housing
- A Stipend
